TO SMOTHER THE BILL. A STRONG EFFORT TO BE MADE

AGAINST FREE COINAGE THE GOLD BUGS WANT DELAY.

The House Committee Is Packed Against Free Coinage-The Force Bill-The

Columbus Building Bill. Washington, January 28.-[Special.]-It developed today that a strong effort will be made to smother the free coinage bill in the poinage committee of the house. The bill passed the senate two weeks ago, and should have been reported to the house before this. It was, however, held by the republicans in order that it might have the effect of forcing the western republican senators in line with their party on the force bill. The force bill now being in its grave, the ase committee met this morning to consider the silver bill. At the organization of this congress the house committee was packed against free coinage. It aided in kill-ing the free coinage bill in the senate passed last session, and now the republican majority of this committee seem determined to prevent a vote on free coinage direct again

They showed their hand this morning when a hearing on the question was given to a Bos ton delegation.

The free coinage men wanted to fix tomorrow for a vote in committee on reporting the bill to the house, but the gold bug majority in-sisted that every one]who desired it should be given a hearing by the committee before it acted. This means nothing more than that they want to consume the remainder of session in hearings, and thus prevent a report uponithe bill until too late for action by the house. Such action was suggested by Mr. Harrison in order that he might be relieved of the embarassment of having eitherito sign

The majority of the house is, however, for free coinage, and this majority is determined that the question shall be voted upon at this session. Thus, if the committee fails to report within the next ten days, a resolution discharging it will be introduced in the house, and the chances are that such a resolution can pass.

The Critic this evening quotes gentleman who stands close the administration as saying: "A conference is now under way between the leading silver men here and representatives

The force bill has gone to the happy hunting grounds and Mr. Harrison's political future constitutes the effects buried with it to be used in the next world.

The Columbus Building.

The Columbus public building conference report passed the senate this afternoon. Tomorrow it will go to the president. Sometime within the next ten days Mr. Harrison will attach his signature to fit, and although Mr. Cleveland vetoed the bill in the last congress, Columbus will now have the building that she has waited so long and patiently for. Mr. Grimes has worked long and hard on this bill. It has been uphill work, too, on account of Mr. Cleveland's veto, but he soon reap the reward. In this connection, it will be interesting

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., January 28 .- In the house yesterday the resolution recently presented instructing the senators from Illinois to vote against the federal election bill in the interest of the world's fair, in view of the stand taken by various state legislators in refusing to make appropriations for the fair if the election bill was passed, was taken up. Representative Springer, democrat, who in-troduced it, in arguing in favor of its passage,

A LITTLE CONVERSATION BETWEEN DINGLEY AND PAYNE

IN REGARD TO VEST'S TESTIMONY.

A Newspaper Correspondent Relates What He Heard Two of the Silver Pool

Committee Talking About. WASHINGTON, January 28 .- General H. V. Boynton testified before the silver pool investigating committee today that he had sent a message to Mr. Dunnell, of The New York Times, on which the dispatch was based, stating that Dingley and Payne had said if they had known Senator Vest would implicate Mr. Cameron they would not have called him.

Witness said he accepted the full respons bility for it, though he would not himself have used just this language. THAT LITTLE CONVERSATION In response to Mr. Dingley, General Boynton said that a gentleman of as good a reputation as any man in that town, who was he's by summons of the committee, said to him that being in the room he had heardwished particularly to say had not overhearda conversation between Dingley and Payne. It was to the effect that Dingley and Payne were talking in regard to the testimony that had ecting Senator Cameron, and each was apparently explaining to the other that he had no knowledge or expectation that such testimony was to come out, expressing surprise stimony and practically apologizing to each other that it had come out in the investigation. He, therefore, said Dunnell was justified in sending out the dispatch.

Mr. Boynton declined to give the name of his informant. Mr. Dingley suggested that it was entirely possible that he might have said that he regretted exceedingly that any congressman should have done any act which made in necessary that such facts should be brought out. But that was very different from the statement that the committee would have kept the testi-mony out or had purposely delayed it. That was totally untrue, as a matter of fact. Both he and Payne wanted to continue the hearing on Monday, but Mr. Oates wanted an adjourn-

GENERAL BOYNTON'S STATEMENT. Mr. Boynton was then permitted to make a statement in connection with a matter, which he had for some time been endeavoring to make. He said that the day before the investigation began, Mr. Stevens, who was in the same office with him, received a message that it was the desire of the committee that he (Stevens) should either be late next day or pro-(Stevens) should either be late next day or prolong his testimony. The purpose of the committee was to adjourn immediately after the conclusion of his testimony until next Wednesday, because Mr. Vest would not appear and give his testimony in reference to Mr. Cameron until after the following Tuesday. Witness had heard the same thing two or three days before. Taking all these things together, he thought the conclusion arrived at very reasonable.

In response to a suggestion as to where the committee could get at the information, General Boynton suggested that a good deal of information might be got out of Mr. Tanner and Representative Abner Taylor. The committee might also get some information from telegrams sent by Littler, Tanner and others,

W. B. Stevens, Globe-Democrat correspondent, was recalled and detailed the conversa tion previously referred to between Dockery and himself, in which a delay in the testimony was suggested. He stated that that suggestion for delay in the testimony did not con the committee or any of its members, and Mr. Dockery did not so assert.

THE CONVERSATION RELATED. Mr. Stevens said that the gentleman t whom General Boynton had referred with respect to the Dingley-Payne conversation was himself. It was a partial conversation. Then, turning to Mr. Dingley, he said: "You began talking in a whisper; became more earnest; raised your voice and were talking loud before you got through. I heard Mr. Dingley say something to this effect: 'It was an entire surprise to me (meaning the Vest testimony). I did not know he was going to testify to any such thing as that.' You (turning to Payne) such thing as that. You (turning to Payne) said: 'I had no idea what he was going to say.' It struck me as if you were each taken by surprise and were trying to explain to each other. There seemed to be expressions that the circumstances under which the testimony was brought out were neguliar and that was brought out were peculiar, and that you regretted the time at which it was brought out."

IT BROUGHT THEM TO THEIR FRET. There was a general interruption by mem-bers of the committee at this point. Dingley and Payne said that while they may have said something of the sort testified to by Stevens they had no purpose except to get at all the information as promptly as possible and they thought the publications were not justified. thought the publications were not justified. Representative Dockery said that the statement of Mr. Stevens, with regard to a desire to delay Senator Vest's testimony, was substantially accurate though he did not think he had said Mr. Vest did not want to testify. He (Dockery) probably expressed his own desire not to testify until Wednesday. He did not mean to convey the impression that the committee desired that.

"Yes," said Mr. Dockery, "I wanted to filibuster against time."

filibuster against time. WHY DOCKERY DESIRED DELAY. In response to a question, Mr. Dockery said in explanation of his course: "Certainly I did not want to bring out the testimony con cerning Cameron until Wednesday. I have no concealment about that now. During the time the resolution was pending before the time the resolution was pending before the committee I formed a belief that there were parties who might desire to use that testimony in respect to another bill. I was informed by a senator that another gentleman had approached him (I do not use 'approach' in an offensive way) and suggested to the senator that it would be just as well to let the resolution for an investigation drop. To that suggestion the senator approached replied that he could not afford to do that, and that he wanted the resolution unshed. The senator then asked the gentleto do that, and that he wanted the resolution pushed. The senator then asked the gentleman why he wanted it dropped. This man replied that he did not care about it himself, but that he understood that some of the 'boys' had bought silver, and the impression the senator got was that they were nervous and wanted the thing dropped. When asked to say who the boys' were the gentleman named two representatives. The conversation was given to me, and thereupon I pushed the resolution."

WORKING FOR THE FORCE BILL. "Now I will state, very frankly, why I wished the testimony delayed. I believe that influence were being brought on the senator in question (meaning a senator who was said to be con nected with the siver speculation) to make him vote for the force bill, and so I wanted investigation delayed in hope of getting one more vote. It was just a straw which proved very substantial, and I want it distinctly understood that I had no assurances whatever, and merely went on the common rumor that his vote on the force bill was doubtful. No, I did not think that exposure at that time would enhance his prospects."

A CHARGE OF EMBEZZLEMENT. acts and Rumors About the Bank Failure at Fayetteville.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., January 28 .- [Special.] denewed interest has been manifested recently in the affairs of the People's National Bank of Fayetteville, which closed its doors a few weeks ago. From all appearances the outlook for President Moore is not the least bright, and the developments that are now coming to the surface are startling. One rumor is Mr. Moore borrrowed $106,000 of the bank's capital stock of $160,00. The fact that Mr. Moore has been arrested on the charge of embezzling $106,000 of the bank's funds is sufficient foundation for the rumor.

Mr. Moore was arrested Monday by a United States commissioner, and his preliminary trial was to take place yesterday.

Parties coming in today relate a sad inciden of the bank failure as coming under their ob-servation on the train. Among the passengers was a lady whose actions attracted the attention of all. She proved to be a widow, Mrs. Roberts by name. Her husband died a few months ago and left her an insurance policy of $2,000. She secured the money and was per suaded to put it in the People's bank. She did so on the very day the bank failed, and the loss of the money upset her mind on the train. She sang songs, ridiculing Moore, and said he had a gold watch and chain, but was afraid to wear them for fear of being robbed.

SCENES AT THE PIT

WHERE OVER ONE HUNDRED MEN

HEARTRENDING WAILS OF WOMEN As the Bodies of Their Loved Ones ar Brought to the Surface-Noble Work of the Rescuing Party. Youngwood, Pa., January 28.—One hundred and seven bodies have been taken from the ill-fated mine No. 1, of Frick & Co., at Mammoth, up to 10 o'clock this morning. It is more victims of vesterday's explosion still in few hours. Nobody slept at Mammoth last night. In every home in the little mining hamlet there was mourning, yet there was no demonstration. Little one-story houses, scantily furnished, were illuminated with tallow candles, and mother, wife, sister or sweethear sobbed in silence. They only know a mysterious accident has befallen them. They cannot see the dead; they have little care for the living; their grief is deep and keen. After the explosion yesterday, news of the awful fate of scores of miners at work in the shaft spread rapidly among the mines and miners' homes. Couriers carried the dreadful news hither and thither, and families were dashed from the comforts of home into the depths of grief and despair. The scene at these miners' cottages can readily be imagined by those who have known grief in its more formidable forms, but no artist's pen can correctly picture it.

AT THE MOUTH OF THE PIT.

Within an incredibly short time the entrance to the shaft was swarmed with eager, anxious crowds of men, women and children some of whom could only, with great difficulty, be kept at a safe distance, as the bodies of the victims, mangled by the terrible force of the explosion, or burned almost out of human semblance, were brought from the yawning depths.

The crowd of watchers pushed forward to the crowd of watchers pushed forward to the pit for a glimpse of recognition. The hearts of wives and sisters stood still for fear their loved ones were among the dead. The more disinterested ones qualled before the scene. Tears coursed down bronzed and bearded cheeks and were dashed away by brawny hands that had swung the pick for many years.

The rescuing party proceeded with their grim task, and the crowd of silent watchers coked on. It was one of those scenes which, once witnessed, remains forever impresse upon the memory of the spectator.

This catastrophe, while involving more than five times the loss of life occasioned by the Dunbar disaster, differs in many respects from bundar disaster, differs in many respects from the latter. At Dunbar the explosion set fire to the mine and the shaft for days and weeks was a rearing furnace, adding horrors to the great fatality. In yesterday's occurence this was not the case, and by the perfect work of the fan, pure air was forced into the mine, and the work of rescuing was permitted to begin at once.

Fifty coffins arrived from Pittsburg this morning, and another half-hundred will reach here tonight. An additional order for twenty-five more was sent this morning.

WHAT CAUSED THE EXPLOSION. The rescuing party is working with heroid energy, and the wreck in the shaft is being fast cleared up. An official of the Frick Company said this morning: "It may never be known how or why the explosion occurred. An accumulation of fire damp was probably the cause, but it was never damp was probably the cause, out to ask hown to exist in any quantity before; in fact it may be said that the Mammoth mine has been free from damp. There is a theory that a pocket of natural gas was reached, and that the operation of ventilating fans now prevents any accumulation of it. It is not necessary that any accumulation of it. It is not necessary that every one in the mine be killed when an explosion occurs. The explosive may stay in one particular section, and may not permeate the entire mine unless the volume is so great as to force it to every part of the pit. In this case the gas was confined to one portion, and miners who were in other localities escaped."

A COMPLETE ANNIHILATION. Never in the history of American coal mining has there been such an unexpected acci dent, with such a complete annihilation of all within its reach. The Mammoth mine has been notable always as being particularly free from gas. Hundreds of safety gauge lamps were from gas. Hundreds of safety gauge namps were provided for the miners by the company but they were never used, as they were regarded as unnecessary. In their stead the men wore the familiar little open-flame lamps on their hats, those small coffee-pot shaped affairs of tin which are fastened above the forehead in the bedgers of the workmen with leaden the headgear of the workmen with leader images of the saints to guard them in the thing safe.

Superintendent Keighley says no man living knows the cause of the accident, and it will never be known for a certainty. He said 300 feet from the bottom of the shaft the rescuers encountered a fall of rock in the gangway which was caused by the explosion. Empty cars, completely wrecked, were piled against it.

"We cut our way through and fell down into the dip where the men were working, and there we were, constantly falling over dead bodies. Not so many were killed by the explosion, but the dreaded after-damp came on the reor, fellows and they succumbed to it. the poor fellows and they succumbed to it.

The postoffice there was the headquarters of the settlers, and between twenty and thirty families had congregated in the village.

Your correspondent held a hasty conversation with many of the farmers, who have become frightened by the Indians and have abandoned their homes, which are located between St. Hilaire and Thief river. Sam Olesen says that on Thursday he was over in one of the camps, just across the river, located about four miles above the village of Thief River Falls, and about eight miles from St. Hilaire. While he was there the Indians were considerably excited over the religious craze, which has been imported from the mountain camps of the Sioux. The Indians have erected a large bark wigwam a few miles from the camp visited by Olesen, and here the ghost dances are now going on night and day. One of the Indians with whom Olesen talked stated that there was going to be trouble, and that by the time spring opened every white man's house on this side of the river, within the immediate vicinity of the line, would be burned to the ground.

Olesen was badly frightened, and not only hurriedly left the camp, but yesterday abandoned his home and, with his family, moved into St. Hilaire. DISCUSSING THE AMENDMENT, oposed by the Minority on the Appor-

Washington, January 28.—The senate met at 11 Yelook a. m., which is to be the hour for daily neeting for the remainder of the session unless therwise ordered.

Mr. Stewart said inasmuch as there was som uncertainty as to Mr. Stanford's position on the vote (Monday) to lay aside the cloture rule, he wished to have read a telegram written to him by Mr. Stanford on Monday morning, but not de-livered on account of interrupted telegraphic business. The telegram, already published, was House amendment to the senate bill referring to the court of claims the claim of the Chesa-peake Female college, of Virginia, for use and oc-cupation of its property from 1861 to 1869 by the military authorities of the United States, was concurred in and the bill now goes to the president.

The conference report on the bill for a public building at Columbus, Ga., was presented and agreed to.

The house apportionment bill was then taken up and Mr. Hale, who had reported it from the census committee, explained and advocated the house bill and argued against the amendment proposed by the minority of the committee.

DAVIS REPLIES TO HALE. Mr. Davis replied to Mr. Hale and restated some of the considerations why the amendment of the minority o the committee should be agreed

Mr. Gorman agreed with Messrs. Hale an Mashburn that there was no politics in the bill. The only question was whether its frame-work did exact justice to all states of the union. He expressed his belief that on the whole the superintendent of the census had performed his work fairly and well; but nevertheless he was construct that the annumeration of Naw Varie work fairly and well; but nevertheless he was convinced that the enumeration of New York city was defective to the extent of 200,000; and he thought that no sufficient reason had beer given why the request of the state and municipal authorities for a recount had not been complied with.

Mr. Carlisle suggested a question which occurred to him as likely to arise from the fact of the apportionment as being made in the same year that the census was taken. That was whether the election of presidential electors in November, 1892, would be based on the then number of representatives in congress, or on the number as it would be on 4th of March, 1893.

Mr. Davis said he had not considered that question, but it at same question must have arisen every ten years.

Mr. Carlisle insisted that it had not a light of the converse of the constant of the content of the considered that question, but it at same question must have arisen every ten years. every ten years.

Mr. Carlisle insisted that it had not arisen be ore, as this was the first time that an apportion-ment bill passed the same year that the census was taken. He submitted the question to the consid-eration of senators on the other side.

Mr. Gorman remarked that he had not given close attention to that question, which was, how-Mr. Gorman remarked that he had not given close attention to that question, which was, how-ever, a very important one. If the bill required to be amended in that respect, the amendment

THE CENSUS NOT CORRECT. Mr. Vance argued from the fact developed i the state of North Carolina that the census wa not correct, and that if the apportionment was nade on that census it would be a false and inc

Mr. Pasco made a similar argument based or Mr. Pasco made a similar argument based on the defective enumeration in Florida.

Mr. Hale took up the question suggested by Mr. Carlisle as to the operation of the bill upon the electoral college, and stated that there was a per-fect analogy between the present bill and the ap-portionment bill passed in 1872, under the ninth census, and that in that case the electoral college was on a basis of increased representation—230 instead of 243.

was on a basis of increased representation—283 instead of 243.

Mr. Carlisle remarked that if the next presidential election was very close, and if Nebraska, for instance, should choose in November, 1892, three more electors than she was entitled to, and if other states elect one or two more electors than they were now entitled to, the result of the presidential election might be determined by the vote of those additional electors. He submitted that, under the constitution (which couldnot be changed by any law, no matter what language might be employed) each state was entitled only to that number of electors which corresponds with the number of representatives and senators, at the time that electors were chosen. Mr. Hale, besides the analogy in 1872, found analogies in 1852 and 1832, and submitted that there was an unbroken chain of precedent in favor of having the number of analogy in 1812, found analogies in 1802 and submitted that there was an unbroken chai of precedent in favor of having the number of electors correspond with the new apportionmen Mr. Carlisle admitted that such precedents wer of great weight, but still thought that they wer not conclusive.

The bill was laid aside after a statement from Mr. Hale that he would ask a vote upon it at noon After a brief executive session the senate adourned until 11 o'clock tomorrow.

That Is What Milledgeville Will Enjoy this

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., January 28.—[Special.]—During the year just closed, Milledgeville's growth was greater than in any other year of its history. The old town humped itself from the beginning and the improve ment during that year expressed in percent age, was not less than 50 per cent. It improved itself in every feature and line of progress, and straightened itself out for a future growth that will be swift and substantial The trade of the town was better than ever before, and its business covered a greater area. The amount of cotton marketed here was fully 50 per cent more than in any previous year. The amount of building done was up to the best years of her history, while every line of work showed up to better advantage than in years. The work of beautifying the streets and improving the looks of things in general has been carried forward with wonderful effect by the present city government. At the beginning of the present term Mayor Cline had the books of the city clerk thoroughly revised; tax assessors were appointed by the city council, and the revenues of the city were largely increased. The debt of about $5,000 that has been hanging over the city for several years has been paid by the present board, and there is now about $3,000 in the city treasury. The streets are in better condition, and the city is under better police protection than ever before. The present year promise to be still better for the city's prosperity, and a large share of its achievements will be due

A company from Augusta, headed by Mr. P. W. Pooser, of this city, has purchased the block just north of the Georgia rallroad, and will build a big iron foundry and machine works there. These works will be thoroughly equipped in every particular, and will be a great boom to the city's growth.

great boom to the city's growth.

The new grist mill being erected by W. T. Conn & Co. on the Oconee river is receiving the finishing touches and will be ready for business in a few days. Its capacity will be about 1,200 bushels daily. The new mill being erected at the Georgia railroad depot is also nearing completion, and will be great acquisitions to the city's list of creative establishments.

A stock company has been formed for the erection of a new opera house here, which will be one of the handsomest structures of the kind in Georgia.

In Georgia.

There has been an active demand for property of all kinds and the real estate agents re port a lively business. A good many important changes have taken place and everything indicates that the present year will be of unusual prosperity for this city. A number of elegant homes are now in the hands of the builders and a great deal of building will be done during the property of the state of and a great deal of building will be done during the spring. There is not a residence or business house in the city to rent, while 200 residences could be rented in thirty days if they were ready for occupancy. The town is prospering in a way that thrills her people with hope and the future will witness here a broad and happy city that has risen from the ravages of neglect and despair.

CONCERNING REPORTERS.

How to Be One of Them-What is Re-

Our advice to every young man about to enter journalism would be to make his start as a repor-ter for some country weekly. That is a splendid experience. Reporters for country weeklies get from $8 to $15a week. This experience (covering six months or a year) should be followed by year's connection with a daily morning newspape year's connection with a daily morning newspaper published in a town of not more than 50,000 population; pay from $10 to $20 a week. This further experience will (or ought to) give the young man an acquaintance with general newspaper work—such details as editing telegraph, reading proof, writing editorial paragraphs, etc.—kinds of work that may not fall to his lot subsequently, but which he should know all about.

If our young friend at Muscatine is dissatisfied with his present employment he will never be a success at it. He complains of long hours yet he says that he is fairly paid. It matters not what business he is engaged in, an employe must be worth more to his employer than he actually re-ceives in compensation for his services. This is particularly true in the profession of journalist The weekly pay for reporting for city newspa-pers runs all the way from $10 to $60; and there is always a splendid chance for good reporters. To be a good reporter these qualifications are ne Health, the news instinct, a sense of numor, the ability to write a simple style in a leg ible hand, eternal vigilance, temperance, amia-bility, patience, determination and ambition. Then, furthermore, it behooves the reporter to be a constant student and reader, infarming himself fully upon every variety of subject that intere mankind. For the profession of newspaper re-porting we have the highest regard, and we find sure in this opportunity of saying that fro this companionship of newspaper reporters whave derived incalculable profit, for of all class and conditions of men (excepting, perhaps, the and conditions of men (excepting, pernaps, the printer) the newspaper reporter seems to abound most liberally in wit, humor, invention, gener-osity, good nature, patience, pluck, fortitude and those other qualities and accomplishments which do so much toward brightening and bettering

TO TEST THE LAW.

COLD STORAGE COMPANIES QUES-

The First Contest Growing Out of the Anti-Western Beef Legislation of the Last General Assembly.

The cold storage men have taken the license tax measure of the last legislatuae to the

The law in regard to cold storage required each and every house to pay the tax before proceeding with the business, or, if already in business, to pay the tax on the 1st day of January of each year.
Yesterday, Tax Collector Stewart, acting nder advice of the comptroller general, issued fi. fas. against Nelson, Morris & Co., the Armour Packing Company and the Atlanta Beef Company, for the $500 each, for license due and unpaid.

The act as passed by the last legislature

"Upon all packing houses doing a cold storage business in this state, whether carried on by the owners thereof, or their agents, $500 in each county, where said business is carried on. The original bill made it $1,000, but after a hard fight the license was reduced to the present figures.
Advised By Comptroller Wright.

The law makes it an offense for any individual or corporation to conduct any such business without having first paid the license, and the penalty in each case is a fine of $1,000, half to go for the payment of the tax and the remain der for the costs of collection.

These companies knew of the law, and that the license was required to be paid on or before January 1st, but they decided to take the matter under advisement.

Tax Collector Stewart being advised by Comptroller General Wright to proceed at once to collect the license, rather than wait until the court convenes in March, precipitated

As the tax is a state tax for county purposes, his action will probably be followed by lar proceedings in Macon, Augusta and Sa-

THE LINE OF DEFENSE.

Messrs. N. J. & T. A. Hammond have been employed by the companies to defend them, and on account of the illnesss of Attorney General Lester, Mr. John W. Cox will represent the state.

The line of defense will be that these companies are not packing houses conducting any business prescribed in the act, and consequently are not liable for the license tax, or subject to the penalty for non-payment.

The contest will be a most interesting one, and the result will settle one of the most vexed questions of the day.

This letter has been received in Atlanta, from Mr. A. C. Floyd, secretary of the Scotch-Irish Society of America:
COLUMBIA, Tenn., Jannary 24, 1891.—Mr. W. Hugh Hunter, Secretary Atlanta Scotch-Irish Society—My Dear Sir: At the request of Mr. Bonner, some time ago, I wrote all members of our executive committee and laid before them for consideration the invitations of Charlotte, Atlanta, San Francisco and Louisville, asking us to hold our next congress in their midst respectively. Their decision is in favor of Louisville by a large majority, being based on the fact that that city is nearer the center of our membership than any of the others mentioned. We very greatly appreciate the cordial invitation of Atlanta, and personally, I regret very much to make the announcement that Atlanta was not chosen. Louisville is making extensive preparations to entertain us, and I hope that Atlanta will be well represented there. If your invitation is presented to our congress at Louisville for next year by a delegation from your society, it certainly will be favorably considered. Trusting that your society continues to grow in numbers and influence, I remain very sincerely yours,

THE STATE ENCAMPMENT. Athens Will Probably Lay Her Claims Be-fore the Advisory Board.

ATHENS, Ga., January 28 .- [Special.]-Interest in military matters is increasing in Athens, and now that the city has such a good military company as the Clarke Rifles, and the question is being agitated as to the organization of a new military company, the state encampment would be a most desirable acquisi-tion to our city. And it is highly probable that Athens will make a bid for the encampment. The city presents a great many advantages, has a healthy climate, good railroad facilities, and in other words would suit splendidly for the encampment. It is more than likely that Athens will lay her claims before the advisory board and ask that the state encampment be located within her

ATLANTA, GA., JANUARY 29, 1891.

The World's Fair and the Bayonet Bill. When THE CONSTITUTION some months ago proposed that the south institute a business boycott against the north in the event that the force bill became a law, there were many to endorse the proposition and many to laugh at it. Even some of our esteemed southern contemporaries raised their lily-white hands in horror at the suggestion, and yet the substantial endorsement that it received enabled THE Constitution to carry out to perfection the plan it had in view. It accomplished precisely what it started out to accomplish, and it is natural that we should regard the boycott as quite a feather in THE CONSTITUTION'S cap.

Under the circumstances, we may b pardoned for briefly referring to the matter here. When the boycott suggestion was made, public opinion at the north was in a state of profound torpor so far as the force bill was concerned. The business menthe conservative elements-were not interested in the fate of the bill one way or another. If they discussed the matter a all, it was in a passive way. It was a piece of political legislation affecting the south, and they were not interested in Such was the situation. So far as any serious expression of opinion was con cerned, the whole north might have been judged to be in favor of the force bill, and it is certain that the partisan republicans were pushing that infamous measure in the belief that it met the wishes of a majority of the people north. It was at this functure that THE CONSTITUTION brought forward its boycott proposition. It was intended not only to test the public opinion of the north, but to precipitate discussion and to give the people of that section an idea of the real nature of the bill, and of the real extent of the opposition of the southern people.

We need not say that the purpose of the boycott suggestion was successful. That is a matter of history. It aroused the attention of the whole country, and the force bill became the subject of discussion in the counting rooms and in the business places of the north. The sentiment of opposition that really existed flared into action as if a torch had been set to a train of powder, and the fact was soon made manifest that the conservatives and business elements of the north were unanimously opposed to the infamous measure. Opposition that had been passive became active, and when election day fell, the northern people gave the republican party a touch of their temper from which that organization will not soon recover.

Considering these things, THE CONSTI-TUTION naturally feels complimented by the fact that certain republican organs are comparing the attitude of the democratic legislatures of the country toward the Chicago fair with this journal's boycott proposition. These legislatures have decided, and very properly, to withhold the appropriation of their respective states to the World's Fair until after the fate of the force bill is settled. This action is not at all pleasing to the comspirators who are determined to push the infamous force bill through, if partisan recklessness and sectional hate and rancor can accomplish Eliott F. Shepard, the tin colonel of the republican party, regards this new development as the sign of war, and he once again informs Mr. Benjamin Harrison that he can have a million men, if necessary, to put down the new southeastern rebellion. "Let us," says the tin colonel, "strike before the southeast can be organized militarily," and he urges the immediate mobilization of troops in every state. These ravings are amusing, but it should be borne in mind that the tone and temper of the tin colonel's editorials are burlesques and not exaggerations of the attitude of the revolutionary conspirators among the republicans. They would crush the south if they could, and would seize the government by force if they dared. The man who, twenty-five years after Appomattox, would advocate such a measure as the force bill, would not hesitate to destroy the republic.

Deacon Richard Smith, of The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, is not far behind the tin colonel of The Mail and Express in his denunciation of the attitude of the democratic legislatures, and both of them make the mistake of supposing that the refusal of the legislatures to make appropriations for the Chicago fair is a sectional movement. The tin colonel of The Mail and Express gives a partial list of the legislatures that have acted or are about to act. He mentions those of Tennessee, Arkansas, Missouri, Texas, West Virginia, North Carolinia and Alabama, but he omits to mention the legislatures of Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, New York and New Jersey. If treason and rebellion are in the movement, as the tin colonel and Deacon Richard Smith seem to think, they are not sectional.

Why should either the people of the south or of the north make appropria tions for a fair to be held in a state whose senators are seeking to fasten on the country an infamous piece of war legislation? If there is treason anywhere it has its abiding place in the hearts of mer who, regardless of public opinion, regardless of the institutions of the country. are making an effort to disfranchise the white people of the south. It is natural that the republican conspirators should howl. This new boycott is not only not sectional, it is the inevitable outcome of an attempt to override and ignore the will of an overwhelming majority of the people of the United States. Galling as it may be to the conspirators, it is nothing to the boycott that will be placed on the republican party when the people next have an opportunity to speak at the polls.

The Free Colnage of Silver. The argument used more frequently than any other against the free coinage of silver, by the monomatallists, is that if we have ree coinage in this country it will be the vorld's dumping ground for silver, and that oreign countries will absorb our gold.

There is scarcely a community in the country in which cannot be found some lit tle two by four fellow, who thinks he is a capitalist because he is a small shylock that squeezes usurious interest, or extorts exorbtant prices from his neighbor, ready to advance this argument.

We propose to examine this proposition n a plain business way and see if there is any danger on this score.

If there is any truth in the statement why is not silver dumped in France? That overnment carries the two metals together. at equal value, without any interference, and by a simple enactment that keeps the gold protected, though surrounded by monometallists on all sides, whe have schemed for years to find some plan to embarrass France by absorbing her gold. In ordinary transactions there is no difference between a gold dollar and a silver dollar. If you present check on the bank of France, it will pay it at the counter in paper notes; if you demand a redemption of the bills, the bank will pay in silver, and if you demand gold the bank charges a premium. Gold then is practically at a premium all the time in Paris, for large sums. Silver is just as much a legal tender in payment of debts as gold.

If France can protect the gold in her ter ritory why can we not do so? It certainly as worked well there.

But where is the danger of these foreign ers absorbing our gold? It takes two to make a contract, and we are not compelled to part with our gold unless we want to: and if we do, we will have a metal the purchas ing power of which, in this country, is equal to gold, or can be made so by law, just as it is in France.

But admitting that it does make this country the dumping ground for all the silver in the world, we will then have a currency far more satisfactory to the people of this country than the currency we now have. No man in this country will now, or will then, unless for effect, refuse to take silver for anything he has to sell. Silver in 1860 was at a pre mium over gold in the United States. A silver dollar is not only "the dollar of our daddies," but it has been the current money in al countries since and before the dawn of civilization, until the past twenty-five years. The United States, instead of planting itself on a high and progressive plane, is pandering to a financial policy outlined by the effete monarchies of Europe, where the wealth is held by a small part of the people and where, the scarcer and more different money is made, the higher becomes the value of holdings? Why should we be always shaping our currency to suit foreigners, and leave our people without a currency sufficient to carry on the business of the country, laying our selves liable to annual panics, and rumors of

We will do well to look to our own country, and prepare a suitable currency for it. Twothirds of the silver that forms the silver currency of the world is mined in America It is our duty for that reason, if for no other. to see that it is not debased because foreign governments ask it. This country will never be as independent as it ought to be as long as we let foreign powers fix the price on the products of our mines and our fields. Give our people a proper currency to carry on and extend the developments of this country. and we will be in such condition that we will not care what they may demand across the water. The free coinage of silver will not give the country all it needs, but it is the first sten to be taken on the line of. redemption, and the men who stand in the way of it will have to retire. The south and west are full of men who have made up their minds on this, and they will not be fooled any longer.

Education in the South. The census begins to disclose some interesting facts about the attendance in public schools. The official figures of the bureau of education show a large gain in the school attendance of the south while that of the lantic states decreased. It is giving the people of that enlightened region something to think about. Why their school attendance should be less than that of the south is what they would like to west stood still and that of the North At-

In the North Atlantic states, where 22 per cent of the population was enrolled in the schools in 1870, only 18 per cent is now enrolled, and in the North Central states, where 24 2-5 per cent were pupils in 1870, only 22 4-5

In the meantime the south advanced from a school enrollment of 6.3 per cent in 1870 to 18.7 per cent in 1890. The western states during the last ten years have remained at the 161 per cent enrollment.

The schooling of the negro is set down as the principal cause of increase, but a minority of the people can by no means cover the difference between 6.3 and 18.7 per cent. The fact is that there is a large increase in the school attendance of both white and

The bureau of education attributes the decrease in the school enrollment of the north ern states to multiplication of private and parochial schools. If this is true, it is a progressive step. Complete dependence upon the public schools is not to be desired, for while it accustoms the people to look upo eaves too little opportunity for the develop nent of originality in these lines on which t is most congenial. In other words, we don't want a stereotyped school system, and whatever gives it elasticity is to be cordially velcomed. But is this the true explanation of the decrease in the school pop the northern states? Hardly. It is, at least not the only cause. The large influx of for eigners and the smaller proportion of children to population, owing to the large immi-

Not the least of the benefits to follow the ancouncement of the bureau is the tendency which it will have to stop the mouths o those previous persons who have made hast o proclaim a state of Egyptian darkness in this favored region. They have abroad and at home proclaimed it so loudly as to give a color of confirmation to the belief of some northern people that we are all barbarians There is another point and an important point developed by these statistics. They show not only that the negro has made great progress, but that he has exceptional advan tages. If the blacks were "killed all the day long," as men of the Lodge-Hoar type would have the north believe, there would he little chance for them to get an education. The growth of the negro's property has been often cited as a proof of fair conditions, but the school statistics are a much more power ful argument. The negro has not the acquisitiveness of the white! man and the property argument can never attain great dimensions, but he is getting a chance for an education, and with equal education and equal laws he has no reason to complain.

A Mammoth Tree

From The Abbeville, Ga., Times. There is an enormous tree in the Ocmulgeeriver swamp, near Abbeville, that rivals the river swamp, near Abbeville, that rivals the famous giants of the California forest. The tree is of the tupelo gum variety, and towers above the surrounding forest of immense caks. It is evidently of great age, and doubtless was inhabited by the Indians in the prehistoric age of this country. The tree is hollow at the base with an aperture large enough to admit a tall man. The hollow extends upward for a distance of fifteen feet, affording space enough for two stories. The hollow at the base is twelve feet in diameter.

A CONSTITUTIONAL GOSSIP.

I had an interesting talk with Stuart Rob son, the eminent comedian, on Sunday. He was in Atlanta en route to Charleston, wasn't particularly complimentary in his re marks concerning the railroad schedule tha made two lay-offs necessary between Chatta nooga and Charleston.

But he didn't confine himself to railroad schedules. A talk on railroad schedules with an expert schedule-maker might be interesting but Mr. Robson's views on comedy are, I am sure, of more value than his views upon any

I suggested that comedy was serious bu "Serious business?" replied the actor

"Why, my boy, comedy is the most business in the world. Comedy is much more serious than tragedy, and, in many cases, much more difficult to render effectively.

I knew something more was coming, so

"In the first place," Mr. Robson began, "I have long since discovered that the so-called spontaneous comedy is a mere myth; that it bedges too closely on the farcical ever to be tive, and that, most of all, it, in its very nature, defeats its own end-that of effective ness in winning the audience. Hence, we conclude that however bright, clever or spon taneous may be the movement of the so-called unconscious comedy here in the daily round of real life, or however effectmay be in the social circle we still must maintain that its efficiency is entirely lacking when transferred to the foo

"Comedy, then, to be effective, must b serious, must be studied, must be planned out with scrupulous care, with specific attention to the arrangement of the minutest details.

"Do you know the most attractive, the most striking, the most successful comedy parts that have ever fallen under my observation were those that had been planned with the most laborious effort There is reason for all this. Comedy finds its effectiveness more in situations than in lines. The success of the situations depends on the attention to detail, grouping, tableaux, climax and all else that go to make up the stage illusion. Lines follow, then, as a matter of course. Hence, I say comedy is the mos serious business in the world.

Then he went on to speak of the tradition of the stage and how it favors tragedy. "It is an unfortunate circumstance," he argues, "for English-speaking comedians, that all the stage has been more in favor of tragedy than of comedy. Shakspeare, the great master, has, and I say it advisedly, done little for ou art. It is true that he created some magnifi cent comedy parts, but in the end the last analysis must show that he has centered all his vealth of genius on the tragedian. A like ashion has set in the taste of our people. We all love comedy, but candidly, I do not think it has the first place in our hearts.

"With the French all is different. Molliere, the Shakspeare of the French drama, was long known as a clever comedian before he was known as a successful writer. When he came to be recognized, he stood forth for himelf-for his own art; that is to say, for comedy Hence, the French comedian of today, under the protecting influence of the geni comedy the greatest tragedian of French dra matic literature, finds a warm, indeed, a first place, in the hearts of his countrymen.
"In France, then, the comedian is the one great center in dramatic art and on the stage. It is not for me to say whether or not the Eng lish or the French standard of judgment is the better. I state a fact, and let you draw your own conclusion thereupon."

"Between Mr. Howard and myself there exists the most cordial and delightful friendship. I regard his genius very highly indeed. In Europe, in England, he is regarded even higher, in some respects, than he is in

"Well, when Crane and I saw that Howard was so deeply in earnest, we said no more, deciding to await the testimony of a first night's ciding to await the testimony of a first night's performance. To make a long story short, Howard was right. The part had the effect he desired in the way he desired, and from the standpoint that he had outlined—although it at first seemed to fly in the face of all our traditions. This I call a fine illustration of Mr. Howard's great dramatic intuition, to anticipate the effect of a part whose inspiration seemed to be from a source diametrically op-

The case went to the supreme court and the injunction was made perpetual. We now have a bill in the legislature to allow us to open the street.

spection of the work asked for and will have some interesting information for the members of the committee this afternoon. The Police Commission

The election of two members of the board of police commission is coming to the front.

The election takes place in March.

Mr. John Stevens and Mr. Walter A. Brown are the retiring members of the board, and both are in the race for re-election. Mr. E. P. Chamberlin, Mr. William Laird, Mr. Waston, Mr. Tom J. Buchanan, Captain E. M. Roberts and Mr. S. A. Morris are among those who have been mentioned. A Bad System

From The New York Evening Post. It is only the survival of an antiquated system It is only the survival of an antiquated system which allows an old congress to meet after a new one has been chosen. The system has never worked any particular harm, because this second session of a congress has usually been confined to the passage of routine measures, like the appropriation bills. But for a party which has just been discarded at the polls to attempt to fasten upon the country in Janhary a policy which the country rejected by an overwhelming unajority in November is as gross a specimen of usurpation as is to be found in parliamentary annals.

Some of the costumes were of wo ness and beauty. Others again were thoroughly comic, and still others struck the medium which can be best described as aesthetic. Domin were, perhaps, the more prevalent and were in all shades and styles. Juvenile costumes were in high favor and Spanish girls graced every corner. At a late hour the signal was given to unmask and immediately it was obeyed, showing many comical situations and mistaken identities.

A great many of the gentlemen were disap-pointed about their costumes. When the ball was first determined upon, Hawthorne, the costumer of New York, was engaged to bring a lot of cos-tumes to Atlanta for the accommodation of the

Whether Mr. Haven's conception of the relations existing between Napoleon and Josephine is the truth of history it is impossible to determine If there is one man who has played a part in the world's history at whose true character it is difficult to get, that man is Napoleon, and the same is true of those around same is true of those around to a greater or a less degree. uncertainty, therefore, pertains to Josephine. and so, I say, Mr. Haven may have the truth o history with him in his handling of the incidents that figure on his play—and he may not. He has that figure on his play—and he may not. He has evidently studied the subject closely but many students do not agree thoroughly with him. However that may be, he has given M'ile Rhea a play which she has made famous and in which she will make a great deal of money. M'ile Rhea as Josephine is, of course, the central figure, though Mr. Harris has an equally strong in that of Napoleon. To say that he osephine is the best thing Rhea has ever done. strong praise. Yet that is the fact. Never before has she appealed to the hearts of the people as she does in Josephine. In many respects she seems the ideal Josephine. Her own

Exchange.

NEW YORK, January 28.—In Wall street today the NEW YORK, January 28.—In Wall street today the-market afforded another surprise, but it was in a dif-ferent direction from that of yesterday, the relapse to-day being as unexpected as the rise and strength of yesterday. The opening of the market was active and strong with London buyer, but room-traders were lukewarm in their bullish sentiments and later London turned seller, which induced some selling by profes-sionals. The market in the forenoon, however, was strong throughout and comparatively large transac-tions were made, Lackwanna, Missouri Pacific and Villards leading the upward movement in the rallroad stocks while the advance in sugar stocks was as pro-nounced as that of yesterday, each rising nearly 4 per nounced as that of yesterday, each rising nearly 4 per cent. The suspicion that these stocks had been bid up to sell upon, made headway in the room, however, and the temper of the room contigent was early turned, and when the attack upon Burlington came it found things ripe for a movement in a downward direction. Burlington was forced off nearly 3 per cent from its best figure, with Rock Island in close attendance, but others were better held and the losses were in a few cases far more than early advances. The two Grangers mentioned were the only stocks which scored any material loss, and while the downward movement continued with vigor till the close of business the general list was, well supported, and the few stocks which had been specially ced as that of vesterday, each rising nearly 4 per upported, and the few stocks which had been specially supported, and the few stocks which had been specially strong in the forenoon, retained a greater portion of their improvement. Manhattan was strong and other specialties, including Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg failed to decline with the rest. The coal stocks were dull with the single exception of Lackawanna and with Villards show only slight changes at the close. The close was active and heavy to weak at about the lowest prices as a rule, though the only marked declines were Burlington, 2%c; Rock Island, 1¼c, and Union Pacific, leer cent, while sugar refineries are up? Stock on hand ... 11,698 Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, January 28 .- [Special.]-Advices fro foreign market were very weak today, Liverpool de clining 5-64d to below 5d and closing without any re tion. Manchester trade reports continue unfav tion. Manchester trade reports continue unfavorable, stocks of cloths and yarns accumulating with spinners well supplied with cotton. Receipts at the ports continue very large, while the interior towns for the day are nearly 50 per cent greater than this day last year. Under this combination of adverse influences our market shows surprising strength, recovering nearly the entire decline from yesterday's close. This is due to a constant demand from the short interest to cover, and, as little desire is shown by the short interest to and, as little desire is shown by the short interest to anticipate a further decline by the trade, it is gene ally expected Liverpool will show some reaction tomo row from today's sharp decline. Estimates of the i row from today's sharp decline. Estimates of the interior movement for the week are from 60,000 to 63,000 bales, against 47,000 bales last year, while the plantation movement will probably be over 145,000 bales. Liverpool has been the weakest of the cotton markets during the past week, and as our market is now attracting consignments, being relatively the highest, the position of the two markets should be reversed. With any accumulation of cotton here, unless the movement decreases sharply, any reaction will be difficult to maintain.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, January 28.—May wheat started at 85%c, or %c up, and in a few minutes advanced to 96%c, then gradually mounted to 96%c in an hour after the opening, and did not again go below 96%c, closing at the highest price of the day.

Corn opened at 520 and closed at 52%c63%c for May with a constant upward tendency from the beginning. In May oats the range was only %c with light trading and all on local account.

In May oast the range was only at with light thating and all on local account.

Heavy receipts of hogs depressed speculation in the provision market, but the shorts were in wait for such an opportunity to cover their sales, and their action was the principal feature on today's market. The lowest prices were those made at the opening and the best

CHICAGO, January 28.—Wheat closes firm and with a healthy tone a shade below the highest price of CHICAGO, January 2s.—Wheat closes irra and with a healthy tone a shade below the highest price of the day. New York, Minneapolis and St. Louis reported good demand for cash wheat at full prices and sales were reported here of 20,000 bushels mixed receipts of winter and spring to a local miller. Bradistreet's figures show a decrease in the visible supply as 1,000,000 bushels for the week. Seaboard clearances were liberal. St. Louis shipments were cood and a sale was reeral, St. Louis shipments were good and a sale was reported from St. Louis of 400,000 bushels of wheat to ported from St. Louis of 400,000 bushels of wheat to France, but it was afterwards claimed that this was the old Bordeaux sale rehashed and magnified. Early cables were tame but late cables weak and lower. Dry weather was complained of in the winter wheat belt and San Francisco complained of drouth, aithough rain was reported at Portland. At the opening one of our large local bear operators bought rather freely, but at the advance was a large seller, and his course, perhaps, prevented the market from closing higher. The genprevented the market from closing higher. The gen ral situation is rather encouraging to the bull side and we think wheat low enough to justify holders adding to their line on any material decline. Corn cables were firm and the market was strong. There is still a were firm and the market was strong. There is still a strong bull sentiment displayed but prices, we think, have discounted any scarcity that existed and are now helping to create a surplus through the medium of economy. Oats were narrow and without any special feature. Provisions seemed to find friends at the opening when May broke $10 and failed to catch stop orders buying reders economic. orders, buying orders seeming to be the rule instead.

It looks as though despite the large hog receipts this product might have a feeble rally, but stocks are too large, and should they continue to increase it will not justify any permanent advance, and we still favor selling on all firm markets.

isted all human skill Thus closed the earthly existence of a mos promising young man. The lad "was indeed goodly in person and well favored." He was endowed with a high order of intellectual abili ties, and his heart was as warm and generous as t was trustful and true. Self had no part in hi nature beyond the performance of duty, which he sought and performed with such fidelity that physical endurance often wearied and were out under it—probably one immediate cause of his leath. Said his aged school teacher, while weepin over his body: "In my life-long experience, I never had a boy to make equal progress in so short a time; doubtless returning to his lessons oo soon brought this about." As to business, he was remarkably successful. His father owns and manages large mill interests in Florida, embracing work connected in all its branches. The management of such an extensive plant requires not only experience, but quite a versatility of talent, combined with administrative ability to control and direct others. The father had needed rest for a long while, but having no capable person to whom he could commit these various important matters; continued to wear out his overtaxed powers. The time had however come for a change, which the physician commanded should take place. This lad undertook to demonstrate, and did demonstrate, that he could fill the place, and so satisfied was his parent that he turned everything over to his charge and came away easy in mind. During his absecance of many weeks everything moved along smoothly, satisfactorily and profitably. So might be brought forward many other cases to show that young n Florida, embracing work connected in all its forward many other cases to show that young Jean Milner gave promise of a life of usefulness and success, whatever might have been his chosen sphere of work, surpassed by few in our country. phere of work, surpassed by few in our country But his moral worth was if anything far superior But his moral worth was if anything far superior to his mind or his business capacity. His home was in the mining districts of Alabama, and not-withstanding his extreme youth, after closely studying his Bible during the week, he would gather the children of the miners, and even their parents, in a Sunday school which he conducted himself. His success was really astonishing. Sincerely did all those scholars admire and respect this little boy superintendent. His parents removed to west Florida, and last year he and his young sister raised the means to build a church in the country where there had never been one before, gathered the children of the neighbors into a Sunday school which they mainly conducted, and had such other religious services as they could secure.

How strange that such a boy should be taken from the midst of har-sests so white:

Georgia Pacific railway will run Pullman sleeping cars from Atlanta to New Orleans without change during Mardi Gras. Two select parties will leave Atlanta. One on Saturday, February 7th, on the special with the Richmond Howit: Association and Battery, the crack company of the Old Dominion state, who will have a select party of ladies and gentlemen with them, arriving at New Orleans Sunday morning at 7:30 o'clock.

Another special party will leave Sunday, February 8th, arriving at New Orleans Monday moraing, the 9th. A new departure made by this company will be appreciated by visitors to the Mardi Gras festivities, and that is they have arranged to have accommodations at hotels or private resi-dences secured for guests going via the Birming-ham route, giving the number of street before departure from Atlanta, thus saving a great deal of uble at New Orleans during the location. If you are going to New Orleans, write the agent of the Georgia Pacific railway for information. Berths in sleeping cars can be reserved on application to Mr. A. S. GENERAL PHIL COOK MAKES COLONEL L. F. LIVINGSTON

And Now That Ingalls Is Defeated, as Liv-Ingston Promised, the General
Is In a Box. There is no stauncher democrat on earth than General Phil Cook, secretary of state.

A BET ABOUT INGALLS.

And from a party standpoint, no man Georgia had less sympathy with Ingalls in his fight for re-election But the general believed, like a great many other democrats, that Ingalls's defeat was im-

Some weeks ago the subject was under discussion at the Kimball house. General Cook was an interested listener, and so was Colone L. F. Livingston.

"Gentlemen," said the general finally, "they can't beat Ingalls. Kansas was with him by 80,000 two years ago, and you can't make me believe it's against him now." "Kansas two years ago was with Ingalls." assented Colonel Livingston, "but it's against

The discussion waxed warm.

"You can't make me believe that," said the general. "I believe his re-election is certain." "You are nearly right," was the rejoinder, "but it's his defeat, that's certain." By this time the group of listeners had increased to thirty or forty, and a general interest was centered in the conversation between the secretary of state and the president of the state alliance. "Livingston," said the general warmly,"I'll bet you anything from a copper cent to a plantation, and give you odds, that Ingalls is elected."

"Don't bet," said the colonel.

"Well, I'll do this. I call all you gentle men to witness. If Ingalls is defeated I'll give Livingston the finest hat in Altanta, and gain the alliance boot." "Do you mean it?" "Of course I do. If Ingalls is defeated I'll let you pick the hat and I'll pay for it, and I'll put in my application and gain the alliance, if they'll have me, and I'll preach alliance doo trine from that day on." "All right," said Colonel Livingston seriously, "you have called this crowd to witness and I believe you'll do what you say. Ingalls's defeat is certain, and I'me going to make you do what you have promised to do." "All right," said General Cook, equally as serious, "if Ingalls' isn't elected I'll buy you the hat and join the alliance."

THE GENERAL IN A BOX. So the general smiles a sickly, dry smile when the subject of Ingalls's defeat is broached.

"It isn't the hat," he says meekly, "though I never believed that I'd go 'round here paying for hats for Lon Livingston to wear. It's the other agreement—about sending in my application to the alliance. "I'll have it to do, and I'd be in a pretty fix if they blackball me-wouldn't I? I thought I was too old to get myself in a box

"Are you in earnest about it?" he was asked. "Do you really intend to buy Colonel Livingston a hat, and then send in your applica-"I'll have to do it," said the general, pathetically, "even if they blackball me." MISS BRADWELL'S FUNERAL.

ROUSING MEETING TO BE HELD

The Interest of the Confederate Veterans to Be Taken Up by the Woman's Chris-

There will be an interesting meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union this

The call is for a grand meeting of all the unions, and others interested in the work, at Trinity, at 3 o'clock. The three unions will meet, with the Y's, and Mrs. M. L. Wells will be present to address the meeting. OBJECT OF THE MEETING.

At the general convention of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union a resolution was adopted formulating a plan by which the unions might interest themselves in the confederate veterans.

Mrs. M. L. Wells suggested the measure, and the Woman's Christian Temperance Union adopted it. The meeting this afternoon is to discuss plans for carrying it out.

Just what action will be taken cannot be told, but one thing is certain, the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, in common with all southern women, deep and abiding interest in the veterans, both spiritual and temporal, and will join with unanimous enthusiasm in any movement that will benefit these old soldiers.

HUSBANDS AND BROTHERS. These brave men are the husbands, fathers and brothers of the women of the union, and whatever action is taken will be the beginning of a work that will not be laid aside until the ands devised are accomplished.

Mrs. Wells, who is a national organizer, is a woman of rare talents. She will address the meeting in her usual interesting and enter-taining manner. She will present some suggestions to the union for their consideration, on the subject in hand, which will appeal to the hearts of not only the women, but the men of Atlanta as well.

It is hoped that there will be a large turn-out, as the meeting is one of unusual importance.

The following is the official notice to the "Y's":

W. C. T. U.

The Atlanta south side union will, at the request of Mrs. M. L. Wells, a national organizer, meet the various unions, and the "Y's," in the lecture room of Trinity church, Thursday, January 20th, at 3 p. m. Let every member be present.

Are wrought by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor in restoring gray hair to its original color, promoting a new growth, preventing the hair from falling, keeping it soft, sliky, and abundant, and the scalp coot, healthy, and free from dandruff or humors. The universal testimony is that this preparation has no equal as a dressing, and is, therefore, indispensable to every well-furnished toilet.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for some time and it has worked wonders for me. I was troubled with dandruff and was rapidly becoming bald; but since using the Vigor my head is perfectly clear of dandruff, the hair has ceased coming out, and I now have a good growth, of the same color as when I was a young woman. I can heartily recomwas a young woman. I can heartily recom-mend any one suffering from dandruff or loss of hair to use Ayer's Hair Vigor as a dressing."—Mrs. Lydia O. Moody, East Pittston, Me. "Some time ago my wife's hair began to not only prevented my wife from becoming bald, but it also caused an entirely new growth of hair. I am ready to certify to this tement before a justice of the peace."-H. Hulsebus, Lewisburgh, Iowa.

H. Hulsebus, Lewisburgh, Iowa.
"Some years ago, after a severe attack of brain fever, my hair all came out. I used such preparations for restoring it as my physicians ordered, but failed to produce a growth of hair. I then tried, successively, several articles recommended by druggists, and all alike fell short of accomplishing the desired result. The last remedy I applied was Ayer's Hair Vigor, which brought a growth of hair in a few weeks. I think I used eight bottles in two years; more than was necessary as a restorative, but I liked it as a dressing, and have continued to use it for that purpose. I believe Ayer's Hair Vigor possesses virtues far above those of any similar preparation now on the market. -Vincent Jones, Richmond, Ind.
